As always, there are many wonderful exhibitions, film festivals, and art events taking place throughout the fall in New York. We've put together our recommendations, and hope that they encourage you to explore the artistic happenings of this great city. Focusing on museums, art nonprofits, and galleries that continue to make New York a global hub of the arts, we hope you'll push yourself to discover something new.

Esperanza Cortés, Canté Jondo/Deep Song

When: September 28–November 3

Where: Smack Mellon Gallery (92 Plymouth Street, DUMBO, Brooklyn)

Cortés's recent, multidisciplinary work wrestles with the violence implicit in mineral mining. This exhibition will examine the similarities between emerald and other gem extraction, and uranium extraction. There will be skulls made of gemstones, chairs encrusted in diamonds, and other objects as initially beautiful as they are unsettling.
